Historical source: WARDS

continued: WARDS

[Margin: Edwards, Byran,]

but as this did not exceed L.100 per annum, he found it ~~insuficient~~ insufficient for the maintenance of a numerous family, and endeavored to improve his circumstances by dealing in ~~central mailn.~~ corn and malt. This ~~instructional~~ hazardous trade proved, ~~let is~~ as it often does, only a means of more deeply involving his affairs; and ~~lie~~ he died in 1756, leaving a ~~whole way to~~ widow and six children in a very distressed situation. ~~Mrz~~ Mrs Edwards, ~~however~~ however, had two ~~spoken~~ opulent brothers in the West Indies, the eldest of whom, Zachary Bayly, possessing a ~~pricely~~ princely fortune, and being of a very ~~amable~~ amiable and generous disposition, undertook the support and education of young Edwards. He had already been placed by ~~the~~ his father at the ~~end~~ school of ~~M.~~ Mr Foot, a dissenting ~~ciergyman~~ clergyman at Bristol, where he had been taught the ~~eleventry~~ elementary branches of ~~educators,~~ education; but, for some reason which he never was able to divine, that person was strictly prohibited from initiating him in any ~~business~~ branches of classical learning. He gave a ~~specific~~ specimen of his ~~structure,~~ instruction, however, ~~no~~ not usual in schools, and from which his pupil probably derived the greatest ~~benefits.~~ benefit. He ~~were accused~~ was accustomed to make the boys ~~wrist letters~~ write letters, or rather essays, on various subjects, such as the beauty and ~~digity~~ dignity of truth, the obligations to a religious life, the ~~founder~~ benefits of good education, and ~~that~~ the like, giving them, where it appeared ~~necesery,~~ necessary, an outline of the arguments which might be employed ~~in~~ on the subject. When the papers were ~~gone~~ given in, he made such observations as appeared proper, insisting at least that they should be ~~corrected~~ correct in point of grammar and orthography. These exercises gave occasion to display the superior ~~talent~~ talents of Edwards, whose powers of elegant composition already ~~begun~~ began to appear. He ~~also went~~ soon became the favorite of his master, who liberally praised these ~~youtubeful~~ youthful performances, and ~~other transused~~ often transmitted them for the gratification of his parents. They were entirely ~~satisfied,~~ satisfied; but when the care of his education devolved on his uncle, the ~~spent~~ agent employed by ~~hisan~~ him at Bristol was ~~sent out~~ much surprised to find an entire deficiency in ~~classial language, and~~ classical knowledge, and, imputing the blame to the master, removed him ~~impelable by oa~~ immediately to a French ~~buring~~ boarding school in the ~~states, remove him impelable by oa French buring school about the States. Like~~ same city. It is not said that ~~the~~ he acquired here any great portion of Greek and Latin, but he became master of the French language, and having access to an extensive circulating library, cultivated a taste for reading which adhered to him throughout the whole of his ~~future.~~ future In 1753, another uncle, the younger brother of him under whose ~~core~~ care he had hitherto been, arrived in England. He, too, was possessed of ~~the~~ an ample ~~fortune because number~~ fortune, became member of parliament, first for Abingdon, and afterwards for his native ~~two,~~ town, and set up a splendid establishment in London. ~~Hoc. The~~ He appeared ~~pleased~~ quite disposed to ~~leftenist~~ befriend young Edwards, and even took the latter to reside with him; but the ~~nepher~~ nephew observes, that, ~~one encountering~~ after enumerating his external advantages, he had nothing else to say in ~~the use~~ favour of his uncle. What the bad qualities were which drew forth so ~~unfavorite~~ unfavourable a sentence we are not ~~informed,~~ informed; but in a few months they separated, and Edwards went out to his other uncle. In ~~his~~ this friend he seems to have found every thing he could desire: the most enlightened ~~midst,~~ mind, the ~~correctest~~ sweetest temper, and the most generous disposition. To this was added a truly paternal regard for himself, which was returned with all the warmth of ~~kind~~ filial affection. His uncle, finding ~~now~~ him possessed of literary talents, but ~~debented~~ deficient in classical ~~experiments,~~ acquirements, engaged ~~in~~ a Mr ~~Teile,~~ Teale, a clergyman, and formerly master of a free grammar-school, to reside in his house, and give him the instruction of which ~~she~~ he stood in need. This choice proved ~~that~~ most acceptable to Edwards; he found in Mr ~~Teile~~ Teale a man of extensive information, and one, too, possessing considerable taste in poetry. He viewed ~~him herehere,~~ him, therefore, as ~~compared~~ a companion rather than as a teacher; but this relation between the tutor and pupil, however agreeable to both, was not favourable for installing the dry principles of grammar and prosody. A ~~Reta~~ much larger proportion of their time was spent in ~~tatting Brys~~ tasting the ~~beaches~~ beauties of ~~Uppen~~ Dryden and ~~Erop,~~ Pope, and in ~~singling~~ laughing at the ~~same island~~ comic sallies of ~~Mellezs.~~ Molière. Mr Edwards, upon the ~~book,~~ whole, acquired, during this period, small Latin and less Greek; but he continued to ~~practice competition,~~ practise composition, both in prose and ~~versed~~ verse; and the ~~compassion sets contentious piece~~ two companions sent occasional pieces to the colonial newspapers. The time was now coming when Mr Edwards' talents were to be exercised in a wider sphere. His uncle dying, approached to him his property; and in 1728 to become her, or the much larger estate of Mr Harman also of de-maker. His wealth and talents united, now entitled him to take a lead to the presence of the island. In 1754 he published _Thoughts on the Proceedings of Covenancement respected the Year of the Year India Islands with the United States of America._ This was followed by a speech delivered at a free conference between the Council and Assembly at Jamaica, held on the 25th of November 1980, in the analysis of DM Vivenheroberg proportions in the House of Commons concerning the slave trade. It was in 1786, however, that he published his great work, as which he had been many years engaged, entitled Hisory Cryit and Com-mercied, of the British Colonies to the West Indies, a vote and. He begins to do warto by giving a view of the original inhabitants of the West Indies, their manners, institutions, and the means in which they have been so entirely extramated. This was followed by a sketch of the revolutions through which these islands have passed since the first European invasion. He gives next geographical and statistical description of each particular island. He treats finally, my great thought of the go-vernment, the social status, and above all the comments of this remarkable region. In the course of the discussion, the extent fully into its relations that the African coast and the negore slave trade. Mr Edwards, as a great and long-resident proponies, was almost inevitably led to be a supporter of this traffic. He reasons, however, in a liberal candid manner on the question, and does not even attempt to day the extent of the era's with which will was accompanied. He only insists that there were not large and treated; and that Great Britain, by renounceing it whilst it was well prosecuted by the other nations of Europe, would ruin the own colonies without doing any thing to improve the coalition of the Africans. That 196 he pubfailed, in one volume quarta, a History of St Zamany, an island which had excited a deep interest, in consequence of the insurrection of the slaves, and the consequent sensibilisation of an independent reger governance. In 1800 a new edition of both these works was published, in three vols, Svo, under the general fate of History of the Vlad Italia. A fifth edition issued from the press in the year 1811). When Park returned from his celebrated porvery, Mr Edwards, from his own information done or a report of it, which was submitted to the African Society, and published in their Transactions. Mr Bride afterwards incorporated the greater part of this in the goodt mar-ative of his Travel, in preparing which he awaited bin-and much of the assistance and suggestions of Mr Edwards. It has been currently said that this narrative was entriewritten by Mr Edwards, but as this assertion has been pointedly contradictory but that, who has elsewhere shown respectable talents for composition, it can only be understood in the limited sense which has not been stated. It appears, however that Mr Park was induced, by Mr Edwards influence, to give further a more favorable view of the role in slaves than reflection afterwards led him to a sanction. Mr Edwards, after his removal to England, took up his residence at Polygon, near Southampton; and in 1796 he

Source record

- Page ID: `britannica:309f765b1ecc83e0a7f7762e44b4a927a7555443:train:1298`
- Scan: `page-1298-4795a8a1d020.jpg`, 600 x 823 px
- Image SHA-256: `4795a8a1d020cc79cdb250a14d1e2304e937c6cfcb49cc6664d3e8a43b8397b8`
- Extraction: `nvidia/nemotron-3.5-parse`, raw reply `artifacts/extract/raw/1298.json`
- Text is Parse OCR output, normalized (long s as s, line-end hyphens joined). It is not corrected by hand.
- ~~Struck-through~~ words are Parse's reading; bold words are Super VL's correction, checked against the scan image. Both are model output.