"The~~ abhorrence. The flavors of domanticly tramway may vastly exist in their national independence / but the Arab is performally first; and he enjoys, in force degree, the benefits of society, without torturing the imperative of nature. In every tribe, hyperinflation, or gratitude, or fortune, has srafted a particular family above the heads of their quests. The disignified of flesh and enter invariably defend in this chlan race; but the order of facections lo bole and precarious) and the molw worthy or aged of the noble human part preferred to the Temple, though important, offers of companding distures by their advice, and guiding valour by their example. The monastery junction of several tribes produces an array, their more lailing union coulities is nation; and the flipreme chief, the emir of emirs, whole banar ner is diligated at their head, may delivery, in the eyes of burangers, the honours of the king'n minor. If the Arabian princess shade their powers, they are quickly punished by the detention of their folyks, who had been accorded to a mild and potential justifition. Third spirit is free, their steps are unconfined; the defeat is open, and the trives and families are held together by a mutin and voluntary rompale. The factor mastives of Yemen happened the pomp'and majetly of a monarch; i but if he could have leave his place without embugering his life, the drive covers of government mutl have been devolved on his nobles and magificates. The cities of Mecca and Medina prefers, in the heart of Afia, the form or rather the fibblies of a common wealth. The grandfather of Malhomet, and his lined an celtors, appear in foreign and domestic translations as the princes of their country; but they reigned like Pendidies at Athens, or the Mediel at Florence, by the opinion of their ~~wifidom~~ wisdom and integrity; their influence was divided with their patrimony; and the ~~fleepte~~ sceptre was transferred from the ~~nucleo~~ nucleus of the prophet to a younger branch of the ~~tribine~~ tribe of ~~Koredik.
